The international community's work on climate change has not gone far enough, according to a UN report that forecasts a rapid rise in global temperatures as the effects of climate change bite. The report's findings, published on Wednesday, do not include a worst-case scenario in which the earth's temperature could rise by more than 3.6C above pre-industrial levels, as many scientists predict. But it warns that climate change will be a "major catalyst" in changes to the environment and the lives of millions around the world. It casts doubt on a "business-as-usual" approach to climate change and urges rapid action from governments around the world to cut greenhouse gas emissions and adapt to the impacts of global warming. The Journal also includes articles and essays on folklore and folklife issues from the Society's publications. Journal of American Folklore Journal of American Folklore Journal The Journal of American Folklore was first published in 1890 and has since grown to become the foremost publication of American folklore and folklife studies. From the outset, JAF has established itself as the preeminent journal for the field with the publication of an annual Special Issue devoted to exemplary scholarship and research by the leading scholars, artists, and folklorists of our time. In 2007, the Society created the JAF Digital Collection, an online-only publication that provides access to historical volumes and represents the only comprehensive edition of JAF available online. An annual anthology series, Special Collections, brings together outstanding new scholarship on JAF's contents and themes. In partnership with The University of Iowa, the JAF blog serves as a platform for new ideas and emerging studies in folklore and folklife... ..Comparative essay introduction: We have often seen the role played by other animals and why they have been brought up as pets. Some believe that the household animal should be a pet and that is a point which is summed up in the saying 'a dog is a man's best friend'. The existence of animal pets is a testimony to the fact that we have all the time an intimate connection with these creatures, as they are amongst the closest animals to us. They too share so many stages with us that you cannot do without one of these. In the pages of this essay, we shall be exploring the pet dogs from the various perspectives. In the old days, the domestic dog was never kept as a pet but as an animal for hunting purposes only. However, with the changing times, the role of the
